Kirtas Technologies teams with RapidRedact to offer redaction technology as part of its software suite

Digitization isn't just business when it includes personal information, which is why Kirtas now offers redaction software for private information

VICTOR, N.Y., MAY 06, 2009 - Today more than ever, the ability to ensure the privacy of personal information in documents is paramount in records management.

That's why Kirtas Technologies has partnered with New Zealand-based Onstream Systems to offer 'RapidRedact' redaction software, the latest technology available to assist customers in compliance efforts when it comes to digitizing legal, financial, healthcare, and other sensitive records and documents.

RapidRedact software is a fast, effective method of irreversibly removing selected information from all electronic document types. The software enables you to completely remove any confidential information from documents, author's changes and any hidden code or data that can exist "behind" the document. The content is no longer part of the document, rendering snooping and hacking software useless, and the original text can no longer be revealed.

"The creation of digital documents provides organizations with numerous benefits with one of the most significant being increased access to information," notes Kirtas President and Founder Lotfi Belkhir. "It also means the added responsibility of safeguarding that information. RapidRedact software allows our customers to add that level of security efficiently and cost-effectively."

RapidRedact Sales & Marketing Manager, David Webb states: "Once information is available in a digital format and accessible by anyone, the necessity to safeguard that information becomes paramount. We're very pleased to be working with Kirtas and to have an additional outlet to reach those struggling with this issue."
